Jory Tindall - Designer

Product designer, design systems expert, front-end developer
jorytindall.com
206-819-3325
hello@jorytindall.com

I'm an experienced product designer with a focus on design systems and systems thinking, UX process and design methodology, and education and evangelism in technical organizations and experienced product teams.

I commonly deliver end-to-end experiences and solutions from design ideation and wireframing, all the way through production code and metrics monitoring. I'm well-versed in React, Svelte, and Ember frameworks with a core focus on presentational JavaScript and functional design thinking.

Much of my work spans both the design and engineering side of product development, advocating for user-centric design with scalable code and accessibility best-practices at the forefront of my work.

I also have experience in brand design, motion graphics, and video editing, and take pleasure in working all of these skills together to produce the best experience for the user.