

Bob Cooley To Take on New Responsibilities at Isolation Technologies

Bob Cooley and Isolation Technologies have announced that Mr. Cooley will retire from his role as IT's Vice President of Sales at the end of July. After 5 years in the role, Mr. Cooley will be moving into a part-time position that will leverage his vast knowledge of HPLC and yet meet his wishes to spend more time with his family.

For the remainder of 2004 Mr. Cooley will work part-time with Isolation Technologies in the areas of new product development and customer support. He will continue serving in these areas as consultant starting in 2005. Mr. Cooley will also work closely with the company in the selection and training of his replacement.

"I am delighted that we've developed a role to extend Bob's involvement," Said Rick Hersom, Isolation Technologies' President. "Over the last 12 years he's been a dear friend and an incredible asset for IT and its customers. I have no doubt that his contributions will continue to bring success to both."

No announcements have been made regarding Mr. Cooley's replacement but Isolation Technologies expects to make a selection in the near future. Mr. Cooley's departure as VP of Sales will have no impact on internal operations and all customer support requests can still be made to Jaime Martain.
