

Common computer based tools to make your practice better today!

Much of veterinary medical practice relies on systems that for the most part, with some exception of financial transactions, are not really designed to help you understand how your practice or business is doing on the operational front, let alone the medical front. Today, however, there has been an explosion of tools that are easily accessible and quite powerful in helping the owner, the doctor, and the staff improve the practice of information by giving them better information. The goal of this lecture is to review both consumer and prosumer tools that can be utilized in conjunction with both practice information management systems and financial systems, and more importantly, how to implement these tools today. By the end of the lecture, everyone should have at least one thing they could implement, if desired, within their environment.