- (e) informing correspondent banks, financial holding companies, registrars and transferagents of securities and external asset managers of the assets of a bank in receivership, that persons who previously had authorisation to give instructions on behalf of the bank with respect to dealing in the bank's assets or assets held in trust by the bank are no longer so authorised and that only the receiver and persons authorised by the receiver have such authority;
- (f) suspending the payment of capital distributions in general and payment of any kind to directors, key management personnel, and significant shareholders of a bank in receivership; provided, however, that base compensation may be paid to directors or key management personnel for services rendered in their capacity as directors or key management personnel of the bank; and
- (g) any other action that it considers necessary.

(4) A person who willfully interferes with a receiver's access to or control over the offices, books of account, other records, and other assets of a bank in receivership for which he has been appointed commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine or to a term of imprisonment not less than one year but not exceeding 5 years.

(5) A receiver shall furnish the Deposit Protection Fund with such information and reports in the form and manner as may be determined by the Institution with the approval of the Central Bank.

Inventory of assets and new financial position.

95. (1) A receiver shall, within 30 days of taking possession of a bank in receivership -

- (a) make an inventory of the assets and property of the bank and transmit a copy thereof to the Central Bank, which shall make a copy available for examination by the public.
- (b) establish a new financial position for the bank, based on a determination of liquidation values of the bank's assets.

(2) Liabilities shall be deemed due and payable and interest shall cease to accrue as of the date of the appointment of the receiver.

(3) Un-matured liabilities shall be discounted to present value at the rate of interest determined by the Central Bank.

Repudiation of contracts.

96. (1) Within 30 days from the date of appointment, a receiver may repudiate any non-performed or partially performed contract, to the extent that the fulfilment of such contract is considered to be burdensome for the bank in receivership and the repudiation would promote the orderly administration of the bank's affairs and protect depositors' interest.

(2) Any liability arising from a repudiation under subsection (1), shall be determined as of the date of repudiation and shall be limited to actual direct damages incurred and shall not include any damage for lost profits or opportunity or non-monetary damages.

(3) In case of repudiation of a lease contract of immovable and movable property, the owner shall be given 30 days' notice of the receiver's intention to repudiate the contract.

Avoidance of pre-receivership transfer.

97. (1) A receiver may set aside the following transactions affecting the assets of a bank in receivership and recover the assets from the transferee or other beneficiary of the transaction if detrimental to the interest of depositors and other creditors -

- (a) gratuitous transfers to, or to persons related to, affiliates, insiders or key management personnel of the bank made within 5 years prior to the effective date of the receivership;

- (b) transactions with affiliates, insiders or key management personnel of the bank conducted within 5 years prior to the effective date of the receivership;
- (c) gratuitous transfers to third parties made within 3 years prior to the effective date of the receivership;
- (d) transactions in which the consideration given by the bank considerably exceeded the received consideration, made within 3 years prior to the effective date of the receivership;
- (e) a transaction based on a forged or fraudulent document that the bank has executed to the detriment of creditors;
- (f) any act done with the intention of all parties involved to withhold assets from bank creditors, or otherwise impair their rights, within 5 years prior to the effective date of the receivership;
- (g) transfers of property of the bank or financial holding company to, or for the benefit of, a creditor on account of a debt incurred within one year prior to the effective date of the receivership which has the effect of increasing the amount that the creditor would receive in a liquidation of the bank: provided, however, that payment of deposits in an amount equal to or less than an amount to be determined by the Central Bank, in the case of banks per depositor or for such amounts as may be determined in accordance with the Deposit Protection Act shall not be subject to this provision; and
- (h) any attachment or security interest, except one existing 6 months prior to the effective date of the receivership.

(2) Any action to set aside a transfer under this section shall be taken by the receiver within one year following the effective date of the receivership.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, the receiver may not set aside a payment or transfer by a bank in receivership if it was made in the ordinary course of business, or if it was part of a contemporaneous exchange for reasonably equivalent value, or to the extent that following the transfer the recipient extended new unsecured credit to the bank which had not been satisfied by the bank as of the effective date of the receivership.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, the receiver may not set aside a payment or transfer by a bank in receivership or made pursuant to any power of an official administrator under this Act.

(5) A receiver may recover property or the value of property transferred by a bank in receivership from a transferee of an initial transferee only if the second transferee did not give fair value for the property and knew or reasonably should have known that the initial transfer could be set aside under this Act.

(6) A receiver may order that notice of an action to set aside a transfer be recorded in the public records for real estate ownership and any other rights in property and a person taking title to or acquiring any security interest or other interest in such property after the filing of such notice takes his title or interest subject to the rights of the bank to recover the property.
