	traveling north about four miles north of Canton, and just south of Keithsburg, the train derailed on a curve near the north bank of the Etowah River. The exact cause of the derailment was unknown, although two possible causes were given. One theory was that a broken wheel caused the train to wreck, while the other theory was that the train was traveling at an excessive speed and was unable to make the curve. The engineer, Roy E. 'Buck' DeArmond, and the fireman, Hubert D. Wiley, were both killed in the wreck. In late September 2008, over 82 years after the wreck of the Little Hook, Lowell Manous of Canton rediscovered the train's bell in the waters of the Etowah River near the site of the wreck. The discovery was made possible due to the fact that the bell became exposed above the water level of the river, after a prolonged drought. The number 394 was found chiseled into the top of the bell; the same number that appears on the side of the coal tender in photographs of the wreck.

Pierce estate. There is one feature of it that was not mentioned when we were all together that prompls me to write this to you. Namely, Emmett's children. They did not ever cross my mind at the time, but I know and you know that they have a voice in it. After every thing has been sold and turned into cash and all debts paid including your own time. I am sure that the legal, and right thing to do before turning the cash over to Mother would be to pay Clyde and Russell or their guardian an eighth of the cash, which would be their rightful share, I feel quite sure I am right in this or I would not suggest it to you. What do you think about it? I know you both want to do the right thing, and Emmett's boys are living facts in this case. And I feel that if there is only eight dollars left after the slate is cleaned that those boys should get one of those dollars.			Third Floor Storage Main Office Computer Hard Drive

	Dear Cousin, I learned that you wanted to buye my plac; and I thought I would write to you; and name price and description; I have 150 acres in all: 50 acres that joins Mr. Raffield and don't join the 100 where I live. I had rather sell it separate if I can sute buyers: as Mr. Raffield wants the 50 acres that joins him. That is all in the woods; on the 100 where I live I have 51 acres in cultivation; divided up in five fields of 20, 14, 10, 5, and 2 acres. About 7 or 8 acres in branches. The land is as level as you would want I recon. My dwelling has 4 rooms 15x15 one of the four is used for dining and evok room; on 10x12 shed room on 6x6 pantry 6 feet hall piaza 8x32 on frount; one stack chimney; 2 fine places/ One smoke house, one cotton house with 2 shelters two cribs with one shelter 4 plank stalls on 60 gallon syrup kittle with briek furniel. The cane mill I would exsept. A small apple orchard of early and late apples. Peach orchard is not verry much: one large seuppernong grape vine which allways bears fine crops. For the 100 acres described I ask thirteen hundred Dollars cash; it is 6 ¼ miles from Dublin. My Dwelling cost me about one third of the price I ask. I have bargained some of my timber to Cousin Wash. Smith for eruss tyes; at 2 ½ ets per tye. Mr. Evans that lives above me had his erus tyed at the same price; and it paid hima little over four Dollars per acre and he said he had a plenty of timber in trade. So that would reduce the price about two hundred. Well if you think you would want the place at that price come soon or write; as three other partys have spoke to me about buying the place. I will haveto pay cash for the place I am on a trade of: and will have to sell for

O 2013.4.53 Marble	Marble Samples from Imerys The Imerys company purchased the former Georgia Marble buildings in Marble Hill. They still mine for marble, but use it strictly in the consumer products industry. The marble, also known as calcium carbonate is mined and ground into different grades in powder form to be developed in cultured marble and dry grinding of extenders and filler products to the engineering and pigment industries. With the development and refinement of micro-fine particle sizes, Calcium Carbonate can be found in paints, vinyl, liquid cleansers, plastics, stucco, latex, baking flour, animal feed and hundreds of other products. Major companies, like Sherwin Williams Paint, Owens Corning and Dow Chemicals, use Imerys product as a filler for common building materials such as paints, caulking, carpet backing, sheet rock, PVC, and other types of plastic, as well as agricultural and lawn limes. Marble chips are sold to local building supply centers for landscaping ground cover. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. The smallest sample is a good product because it is pure white and has few crystals. 2. The sample with the large crystals is a poor product because of the crystals. 3. The pink sample with the pyrite was rejected for pulverizing because of the color and impurities. 4. The powder is the finished calcium carbonate. 			Fourth Floor Storage Archives Room 1 Closet 11

	"The Mercury dime is a ten-cent coin struck by the United States Mint from 1916 to 1945. Designed by Adolph Weinman and also referred to as the Winged Liberty Head dime, it gained its common name as the obverse depiction of a young Liberty, identifiable by her winged Phrygian cap, was confused with the Roman god Mercury. Weinman is believed to have used Elsie Stevens, the wife of lawyer and poet Wallace Stevens, as a model. The coin's reverse depicts a fasces, symbolizing unity and strength, and an olive branch, signifying peace."

O 2016.18.2 Panel	Buddy Alexander William Robert Alexander was born in Marietta on Halloween, October 31, 1922. Known as Buddy, he could not afford college and instead chose an unusual career path for the time, as a photographer. After starting out as a street photographer in Atlanta, Alexander and his young family settled in Canton in 1952, opening a studio in their home on Main Street. In addition to his work as a portrait and crime scene photographer in Cherokee County, Alexander frequently traveled with his friend Lester "Smiley" Burnette, a popular cowboy actor and sidekick to Gene Autry. Alexander Studio, Canton. 1950s. In addition to playing Gene Autry's sidekick in many western films, Burnette was a well-known country singer-songwriter. Later in his career, he appeared on television in the popular series Petticoat Junction and Green Acres.
O 2016.18.3 Panel	Business as Usual When Buddy Alexander first moved to Canton in 1952, the downtown area was a bustling center of business and commercial activity. Restaurants, retail stores, banks, pharmacies, and the theatre lined Main Street. In addition, Alexander captured images of workers, business owners, and consumers in communities throughout the county. Main Street, Canton. October 11, 1968. Downtown Canton's many businesses serve as the backdrop for the Cherokee High School Homecoming parade. Kessler's Variety Store is in the middle of the block, with the taller Key's Jewelry building to the right. To the left are Mid-City Pharmacy and the Green Rail Restaurant. The new R.T. Jones Memorial Library, which opened this same year, is visible at the end of the street, identified by its arched façade. Ball Ground. 1970s. Built in 1911 by A.W. Roberts, Roberts & Sons General Store supplied the Ball Ground community with groceries, dry goods, clothing, and farm equipment until 1970. At the time of this photograph, the building housed an antiques shop. Following an extensive renovation in 2012, an event venue currently occupies the space. Childre Chevrolet, Canton. June, 1969. A 1969 Camaro Pace Car rolls out of Childre Chevrolet on the way to the Canton International Speedway. Dealership owner Rudy Childre sits in the car on the left. Stock car racing was a popular diversion in Cherokee County from the 1950s through the 1970s, with four different tracks contributing to the action. The Canton International Speedway operated in the late 1960s and early 1970s, primarily racing Chevy Camaros and Chevelles.			Fourth Floor Storage: Archives Room 4

	Bank of Woodstock, Woodstock. March, 1973. The Bank of Woodstock opened in 1905, the second financial institution in the county after the Bank of Canton, founded 13 years earlier. Originally located on the corner of Main Street and Arnold Mill Road, the new building seen here was constructed in 1970 at the corner of Main and Noonday Streets. The Bank of Woodstock was a vibrant community partner until the financial crisis of 2008-2009 and is no longer in operation. The “Vee,” Canton. March 2, 1961. The intersection of Highway 5 and Marietta Road in South Canton—known locally as the “Vee”—has long been a commercial hub. In this early 1960s view, Blair’s Supermarket is on the right and the Cagle Brothers Shell Station to the left. Canton Motor Sales stands in the rear center, behind the line of parked cars. The Moore family opened the car dealership in 1945 on North Street in Canton, relocating to this location in 1960. The Pine Crest, Holly Springs. June, 1964. The Pine Crest Inn Motor Lodge and Restaurant, located on Highway 5 between Canton and Holly Springs, was operated by Claude and Thelma Green. The restaurant frequently hosted banquets and events for local organizations and was a popular Sunday lunch site for many families after church. Buddy Alexander’s work was prominently displayed in the restaurant’s Paige and Kimberly rooms. Named for the owner’s granddaughters, the rooms contained portraits of the girls, photographed and hand-colored by Alexander. Although the restaurant was demolished, the Motor Lodge continues to welcome travelers.
O 2016.18.4 Panel	Education From the founding of its first school in 1834, education has played a crucial role in the development of Cherokee County. The 1950s and 1960s brought change and progress, with the opening of a modern, consolidated secondary school, and the integration of the school system. In addition to the elementary and high school students he photographed at work and play, Buddy Alexander also recorded campus life at Reinhardt in Waleska, the county’s only institution of higher learning.			Fourth Floor Storage: Archives Room 4

	Cherokee High School, Canton. October 11, 1968. Cheerleaders circle around the Warrior mascot during the Homecoming game. Cherokee High, located in a modern facility on Marietta Highway, replaced Canton High School in 1956. The school system chose emblems to highlight the Native American heritage of the county: the Chieftain newspaper, Sequoyah year book, and Warrior mascot. Ralph J. Bunche School, Canton. May 26, 1961. In the 1950s, Cherokee County built an elementary and high school to accommodate all African-American students in the county. These students celebrate their graduation from the Ralph J. Bunche school, originally known as the Cherokee County Training School. Located on Highway 140 north of Canton, students from the nearby Pearidge and Nineteen communities walked to the school, while those from Waleska, Woodstock, and other areas were transported by bus. The school was renamed in this same year, 1961, to honor the first African-American Nobel Peace Prize laureate. Reinhardt College, Waleska. October 31, 1961. This color image from the Alexander Collection shows Reinhardt College students relaxing in their dorm room. Unlike many other early institutions, Reinhardt was coeducational from the time of its founding in Waleska in 1884, teaching boys and girls from elementary through high school. Following the construction of Cherokee High School in 1956, Reinhardt served solely as a junior college. The school, long-affiliated with the Methodist Church, became Reinhardt University in 2010. Main Street, Canton. October 11, 1968. Cheerleaders from Hickory Flat Elementary march up Main Street during the Cherokee High School Homecoming parade. As the county's sole secondary school, CHS events drew crowds from all communities. Students in grades 1-11 attended the school until 1924, when the older pupils moved into a new building across the street.
O 2016.18.5 Panel	Faith and Worship Faith and worship were—and remain—the foundation of many in Cherokee County. Buddy Alexander documented all aspects of religious life in the county, from the first dip in the baptismal pool to the celebration of spiritual milestones. His photographs illustrate the range of architecture in local houses of worship, including imposing brick structures in town and one-room, clapboard country churches. Waleska Baptist Church. October, 1968. Members of the Girls' Auxiliary participate in a coronation ceremony at the Waleska Baptist Church. As girls completed certain "Forward Steps," demonstrating their knowledge of missions, scripture, and practical skills, they were recognized in a public service. The girls wear circular badges with a central star, the emblem of the Auxiliary. The colors of the badge represented the ideals of the organization: green for growth, white for purity, and gold for sincerity. First Baptist Church, Canton. April, 1963. One of the largest churches in the county during the 1950s and 1960s, the First Baptist Church of Canton was founded in 1834. At the time of this photograph, the church stood at the south end of Brown Park in downtown Canton. The building currently houses the City Hall, following relocation of the congregation to a site north of Canton. Hickory Log Baptist Church, Canton. 1971. Hickory Log Baptist Church was established in 1872 by Philip and Dave Keith, former slaves on the Keith Plantation. Originally housed in a log cabin, the brick building seen here was constructed in 1957 and continues to serve the congregation. Philip Keith acquired a large parcel of land north of Canton following his emancipation, donating a section for the church, as well as a cemetery and school. This is a simple, rural church, resembling so many in the Cherokee County countryside. The Big Springs community took its name from the spring—the largest in the county—that flows in the woods behind the church. Such churches were central to their communities, hosting camp meetings and singings, and even housing local schools.

	Inc. for the Water and Sewerage Authority of Cherokee County, who plan to construct a sewer line on the south side of the river, adjacent to the mill complex. The site had been determined eligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places by the Georgia State Historic Preservation Officer. Because of the potential for an adverse effect upon the site by vibrations from the proposed construction, a mitigation program that recorded the site by measured drawings, photography and archival research was implemented. Architectural drawings and large format photographs based on Historic American Building Survey/Historic American Engineering Survey (HABS/HAER) standards were prepared. Historical research indicated the site began as a grist mill, probably in the late 1840s. Sometime in the early 1870s a small yarn mill was started, initiating a tradition of textile milling at the site for the next 70 years. Around the turn of the century, the mill shifted its production line to cotton rope manufacturing, which continued until the mill closed in 1949. The mill was probably one of the few textile manufactures in Georgia devoted exclusively to the manufacturer of cotton rope for plowlines and well lines. Signed: Richard Johnston October 6, 1993

In helping her find some resources on the Johnston family, I found that only two personally written documents existed, the 1937 autobiographical paper written by J.H. Johnston, and a written history of his WWII experiences by my father, Smith L. Johnston, Jr. Luckily, Dad saves everything and had many historical documents, newspaper articles, old photographs, letters, etc. Best of all were his remembrances of days past captured on a tape recording we made together on his 80th birthday. Numerous lengthy phone conversations followed during the past few months. I write fast and captured mostly word for word those conversations. What started as a task, quickly turned into a labor of love. I view the paper as just a beginning and envision a book with more in-depth portrayals of relatives and events in the past. Because of	Excellent

The wonderful Johnston women will be covered in my expanded family history. I plan more tapping sessions with my parents as well as talks with relatives and the black people who have meant so much to our family. My own memories will also be a part of the expanded history. This paper is written for the benefit of my three children and future generations in the hope that it will provide them with an understanding of their Johnston heritage in general and special Johnston forefathers in particular. I dedicate this paper to my father -- with all the love in my heart..... Janice Johnston Kane April 10, 2000

	Executive Department Atlanta Lester Maddox Governor and Zell Miller Executive Secretary: "Dear Fellow Public Servant: As you know, for the past several months the Constitution Revision Commission has been working on a new Constitution for the State of Georgia. The need for a new Constitution is becoming more acute every day, due to the numerous local amendments ratified at each general election and the overall disorganization so apparent in our present Constitution. Because of your interest in the welfare of our great State, we are aware of the concern you have for all matters pertaining to the State Constitution. Therefore, I am sending you this advance copy of the Commission's findings and recommendations which will be submitted to the 1970 session of the Georgia General Assembly. The Commission has made a thorough analysis of all the proposals submitted to them. We feel that the proposed Constitution as finally approved by the Commission is one that is designed to eliminate the numerous amendments that have been so prevalent in the past and its flexibility is such that the needs of the future can be adequately met. I sincerely hope that this report will be of great interest to you and that you will give it your careful study. After having done so, I would suggest that you contact your local legislator and convey to him your thoughts and feelings to this new Constitution for the State of Georgia. Sincerely, Lester Maddox Governor"

Selected Court Forms Preface: June 15-18, 1986, twenty-eight participants (including 24 probate and general jurisdiction trial judges) from across the country assembled at the National Judicial College in Reno, Nevada for a National Conference of the Juddiciary on Guardianship Proceedings for the Elderly. Their objectives were to recognize and discuss the special concerns of older alleged incompetents and wards - for procedural due process, thorough and functional evaluation of medical/social evidence, decisions affording maximum autonomy, and sound, periodic guardianship review. The conference was sponsored by the American Bar Association Commission on Legal Problems of the Elderly, in conjunction with the National Judicial College. It was funded by the Administration on Aging, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, with supplemental monies from the Marie Walsh Sharpe Endowment. The participants were slected from states with the highest population and percentage of elderly. They were chosen as judicial leaders, and they brought to the session extensive knowledge, yet a willingness to learn and to change long-standing attitudes and procedures. This they coupled with a sense of excitement in attempting to constructively resolve the complex dilemmas facing judges in guardianship proceedings. The Conference was a beginning rather than an end. After two and one-half days of lectures, panels, discussion groups, films, plenary session debates and informal converstaions, the participants voted to adopt the Statement of Recommended Judicial Practices which follows. It provides for the first time some national guidance to judges in confronting the problems of the growing number of elderly who may need assistance in managing their property, personal affairs or both. Hopefully, the conference and its recommndations will spur judicial educators and associations to sponsor similar sessions at the state level; encourage necessary changes in statutes or court rules; foster closer coordination between the judicial and aging systems; and urge judges to test the tenets in their own courtrooms. Guardianship represents a drastic loss of fundamental civil rights. The judicial practices recommended by the National Conference of the Judiciary on Guardianship Proceedings for the elderly stress the importance of assuring maximum autonomy to elderly wards while still providing the assistance they need. Deeply rooted societal myths and stereotypes about older people have long permeated the guardianship process. In some states it has been the practice of appoint a guardian based on the advanced age of a person, regardless of that person's ability to function. The court has the ultimate responsibility for determining incompetence and for monitoring a ward's condition and continuing need for guardianship. A key recommendation of the Conference is that judges handling guardianship cases be adequately educated at local, state and national programs as to the powers of the court and about the aging process and the myths and stereotypes of aging. The National Judicial College is proud to be a sponsor of thie Conference and to grow in our own learning about the aging process.
