

Teamwork that works from anywhere

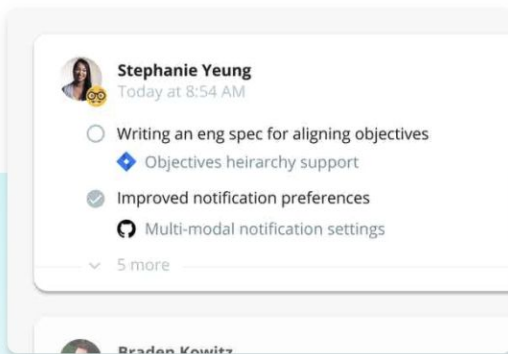

Build the foundations of remote work

Remote teamwork requires increased investment in communication processes and teambuilding. Leaders struggle to support their teams in this new environment without defaulting to micromanagement, which hurts productivity. HR teams have the opportunity to support teams with best practices and tools that make it easy for leaders to succeed at remote work.

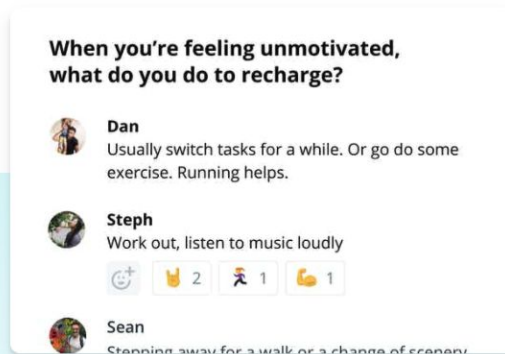

Check-ins fuel great teamwork

Daily status updates are a long-established habit of great teams—they increase awareness of what’s happening, celebrate great work, and offer a moment of connection. Too often, leaders use them as a way to micromanage, and teammates feel burdened by another daily meeting. Range reimagines the status update to be a moment for empowerment and teambuilding. It’s asynchronous, light-weight, and teams love it.

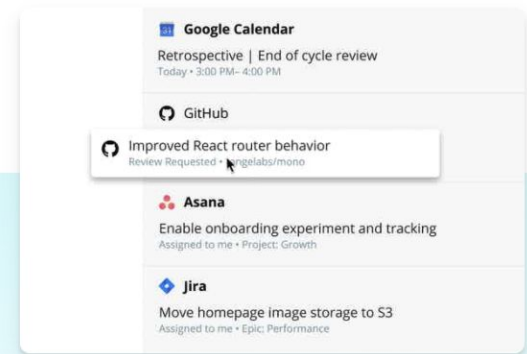

Keep your team on track without micromanaging

Know who’s working on what, who needs help, and how they’re feeling with daily async Check-ins.

Help your team grow closer even when everyone’s apart

Answer daily team questions, share moods, and give thanks to build trust and strengthen the foundations of teamwork.

Control the chaos of working in multiple tools

Easy integrations with tools like Slack and Asana power up your Check-ins. See all your activity in one place and share work across your team.

Educate teams about remote work

With every pilot program, Range offers training with professional coaches, so teams learn how to work remotely, not just how to use software. Custom training allows any team to successfully use Range—from finance to marketing to product development—adapting usage to fit their habits and needs.

Ready to get started?
Get in touch jen@range.co!