

Points Are Relative

Reading a 300-page book will take twice as long as reading a 150-page book.

Assuming they generally the same type of books, etc.

Points Are Relative

Walking or running two kilometers will take twice as long as walking/running one kilometer

Assuming the same terrain, etc.

Would an Olympic runner agree?

Can you and the Olympian agree to estimate those as 10 and 20 then?