Daily Sessions Revisited5 minutes

1. Explain that you are going to review the day's agenda. Tell the participants that you would like to have their feedback about how each session went.
2. Explain that as you say the name of each session you would like them to share (with you) how much they enjoyed the lesson by providing feedback.
3. Tell the participants that you want them to be able to let you know their opinions in a way that is comfortable. To accomplish this they will close their eyes, and use their hands to indicate how they felt about each lesson by holding up a number of fingers.
4. Explain to participants that they can display 1-5 fingers, with one finger indicating "not satisfied," and five fingers indicating "very satisfied."
5. Ask participants to close their eyes then say the name of each topic that was covered on the agenda.
6. As participants hold up their fingers, make a note of the level of satisfaction for each lesson.

Closing Reflection5 minutes

Thank each participant for their contribution and indicate the agenda for the following day.
