

ACS Publications Editor-in-Chief Job Description

ACS Publications is seeking an Editor-in-Chief to lead Accounts of Chemical Research. We invite nominations, including self-nominations, to this position from the community of chemistry researchers.

Candidates for the Editor-in-Chief position should be active researchers, with a stature in the global research community commensurate with the leadership of this high-impact journal. Their experience should be broad enough to allow them to effectively steward a journal that covers all of chemistry. Importantly, they must be able to work effectively with a team of editors, as well as ACS Publications staff, to manage the day-to-day flow of manuscripts through the editorial process while also pursuing broader strategic initiatives to benefit the journal.

The Editor-in-Chief of Accounts of Chemical Research is responsible for appointing Senior Editors to the journal and working closely with them to ensure that the journal is serving the research community. The Editor-in-Chief is ultimately responsible for the review, selection, and publication of manuscripts submitted to the journal. Additionally, the Editor-in-Chief, along with the Senior Editors, is responsible for identifying top researchers across all disciplines of chemistry and working proactively to bring timely contributions from those researchers into the journal.

The Editor-in-Chief must hold themselves to the highest ethical standards in research and publication. They should use their time efficiently to ensure that manuscripts are processed in a timely manner while receiving a thorough and fair evaluation.

Nominations are open to researchers around the globe. The American Chemical Society embraces and advances inclusion in chemistry and does not discriminate based on race, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender expression, and gender identity.

If you see yourself in these criteria, or you have a colleague you believe would be a good fit, we encourage you to nominate! The deadline is Monday, February 27, 2023. If you have any questions about submitting a nomination, please contact the Managing Editor at managing.editor@acr.acs.org. We hope to hear from you soon!
