THE 2021 PENNSYLVANIA FIFTY OVER

50

Leaders from around the state who see success has no age limit.

THROUGH A CAREFUL PROCESS of nomination and in-house research, City & State has put together a first-class lineup of achievers over the age of 50 in the Keystone State. Though they work across various industries, the people on this list are highly skilled at what they do and many have broken records and glass ceilings to get where they are today. They are being recognized because they were once open-minded and attentive proteges who later developed into diplomatic and compassionate mentors. Developed in partnership with AARP, this list also highlights the work of 10 Lifetime Achievement award winners. These people have made lasting contributions to Pennsylvania by helping shape their communities through successful business endeavors, civic engagement and service to local and state government.

MICHAEL DELGROSSO

CHIEF SALES AND MARKETING OFFICER

DelGrosso Foods

Few people can boast a 40-year long relationship with the same company, but for Michael DelGrosso, he's been working in the family business ever since the age of 10. The Altoona-based DelGrosso empire stretches across multiple industries, including food products and an amusement park. But it's not just consumers who get the benefit of DelGrosso's decades of experience in the food industry. DelGrosso regularly shares his valuable business and marketing expertise with college students across the commonwealth.

DelGrosso Foods is the oldest major family-owned producer of pasta sauce in the U.S.

Congratulations to two members of the DelGrosso Family!

As part of the Penn State Outreach and Online Education (OOE) Year of Gratitude celebration and to recognize the DelGrosso family for its service, Michael and Sherry DelGrosso were awarded the 2021 Fischer Award of Distinction. The award is annually given to friends, donors, alumni, and volunteers who have distinguished themselves through extraordinary service to advance Penn State OOE through their work, volunteer efforts, or financial support.

Are Your Taxes Going to Change?

Wise investors take the "big picture" view.

Provided by John Battaglia, CPA, AIF

Most likely, you've heard what's brewing in Washington, D.C., called by one of these names.

The Build Back Better Act. Or the $3.5 trillion budget reconciliation bill. Or the Jobs and Economic Recovery Plan for Working Families.¹

Regardless of what name you've heard, one fact is clear: It is likely to be months before any action is taken.

When bills are being worked on—especially one that's this size—it's a good time to take a quick Civics refresher. Right now, the bill is "in committee" with both the House of Representatives and the Senate. The committees are filling in the policy details and the exact financial figures, which can be a long process.²

It will then be up to the House and Senate to vote on an identical version of a final bill—if both can agree to a final version.²

Right now, it would be hasty to make any portfolio changes based on what's being discussed and debated. An ambitious investor would have to guess at what policies will be in the final bill, estimate the financial impact, and determine what portfolio changes should be made. That's a tall order.

So as difficult as it may be, the best approach is to wait-and-see. We work with professionals who are watching every twist and turn. If something starts to take shape, we will evaluate the impact.

We also understand that some of you may have concerns about whether your taxes are going to change. If that's the case, please reach out. We would welcome the chance to speak with you.

John Battaglia, CPA, AIF may be reached at 814-862-9675 or john@sb-wa.com.

Welcome To The Team!

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

I am in competition with no one. I have no desire to play the game of being better than anyone. I am simply trying to be better than the person I was yesterday.

QUOTE FOR THE MONTH:

"Any fool can criticize, complain, and condemn—and most fools do. But it takes character and self-control to be understanding and forgiving."
