

New Labels For La Famiglia DelGrosso

It's been 16 years since we launched our La Famiglia DelGrosso line of specialty sauces! Since then, every few years we've made some minor tweaks to the look and feel of the label. Recently though, we have undergone a full "refresh" of our labels in order to make our brand more visible to customers in the grocery store.

What's changed? You'll notice clean lines and a simpler layout with brand images and messages that are easier to notice. Most of all, the label is much lighter and brighter to help us really stand out on the shelf. "AMERICA'S OLDEST FAMILY SAUCEMAKER" is prominently displayed just under the brand name.

Customers will still see the family photo on the front of the jar, as well as recognizable flavors like

Uncle Joe's Vodka Sauce and Aunt Mary Ann's Marinara. We've had the chance to show the new look to some of our grocery chain buyers, and the feedback has been very positive. The new labels will start to show up in grocery stores around the country over the next few months, and we are excited to share them with our loyal customers.

Feeling The Love

Why is the Pizza Sauce not called Del Tasteo?

Hehe. Love the sauce!
SO GOOD.

The Sloppy Joe sauce is amazing too.
THANK YOU!!!!

Congratulations On Your New Position!

We are pleased to announce that Aaron Delay has joined the Accounting team for the DelGrosso Family of Companies! Aaron had been the Director of Production Planning and Administration for Marianna's since joining us in January 2020, and we are looking forward to his future contributions in his new role of Staff Accountant II / Financial Analyst I.

Please join us in congratulating him on the transfer!

Mike Schmoke – Awarded for Superior Service
We received a compliment from a Customer that "The driver Mike was great."

Paul Vaughn – Awarded for Teamwork
Paul came in to do a pickup of product needed for the next day's production - because the vendor could not deliver due to weather conditions.

NEW baby
ALERT!

Congratulations to Jim Moschella from our Accounting Office and his Wife Jenna!

They welcomed baby #3 on Wednesday, February 16, 2022.

Mason James Moschella was 7lbs 9oz and 18.5 inches long.

Big sisters Hannah and Lexie are thrilled to have their new baby brother to snuggle with.

Jim has already purchased golf clubs so Mason can become a semi pro on the course, like dad!

Creating an Active Lifestyle

Living an active lifestyle is one of the most powerful predictors of good health. As little as 150 minutes of moderate to vigorous physical activity each week has been shown to reduce the risk of developing chronic health conditions like heart disease, diabetes, hypertension, cancer, and stroke.¹

If your health goals include creating a more active lifestyle, here are some tips that may help:

Begin where you are. Honor where you are right now and advance your activity levels slowly. Before making any big changes to your normal routines, consult with your primary care provider, especially if you are managing a preexisting medical condition.

Choose your metrics. Choose metrics to track your fitness progress. For example, you could monitor minutes, steps, distance, or the number of days per week you exercise. Metrics offer concrete information that you can use to determine if and when adjustments are needed.

Schedule it. To be more consistent with exercise, try blocking time on your calendar several days each week to serve as a visual reminder.

Focus on activities you love. Focus on the exercises you enjoy most. Whether it be yoga, running, swimming, or team sports, you will be more likely to follow through with your workouts when you look forward to them.

Make movement part of your daily life. Integrate physical movement into your daily life by scheduling walking meetings, taking the stairs, or riding your bike when you can leave the car behind.

The goal of an active lifestyle is for exercise to become who you are rather than just something you do. To get started, assess your current habits, and look for creative ways to weave more physical activity into your daily life.
